

The Competition

After years of study, I concluded that what God wants from me is to increase the selflessness of humanity as much as humanly possible. To Serve God I will try my best to create as much selflessness in humanity as I can. I think the best way to do this is to spend the rest of my life trying to create the following game/contest to serve my God.

The Participants

Anyone can sign up but they have to represent for one of the following groups:

Muslim, Hindu, Buddhism, Atheist, Christianity, Judaism

The Ticketing System

We will create a ticketing system where everyone in the world can write a ticket that will fall into one of two categories. The first category will be a need (like I am starving to death) or the second category will be a want (like I want a golden toilet)

The Points System

Every time a person or group of people fulfill a need the organization that they are representing will get points. If it is a need then the organization that the participants are representing get 5 points and if it is a want then the represented organization gets 1 point.

The Prize

After a year the system will reset the points and the winning organization for that year will get to send a representative of their participants to give a two hour mandatory attendance speech to the UN General assembly where they can describe their belief structure and how it should impact the current events that are causing the problems that the UN General Assembly are facing.
